Google Additional Services Consent

Google for Education has changed the privacy policy for their Additional Services, which includes tools such as YouTube, Text Help Apps (Read&Write and OrbitNote), and Google Translate, and now requires parent/guardian consent. Granting consent will allow HRCE to turn on the additional service tools including, but not limited to, those listed above which are deemed appropriate for students. Note - With consent, YouTube will only be turned on for students in grades 7-12. Please click here more information from HRCE. Also, please click here additional information specifically relating to Consent for Google Translate from EECD. I give permission for the Halifax Regional Centre for Education to allow access to approved Google Additional Services to my child's/student's Google Workspace for Education (GNSPES) account.
